Green County Comm. Book

The purpose of this Index and the accompanying map is (1) to enable one to determine, almost at a glance, whether or not any certain road is a County Road and (2) to locate the Book and Page of the record or records applicable thereto.

County roads are those located and defined by the Board of County Commissioners or by order of Court prior to the establishment of that Board.

The dot within the lines of a highway is characteristic of a County Road, and only roads so marked are County Roads except State Highways which are all or nearly all laid on former County Road locations or on locations made therefore by the Board of County Commissioners and recorded with the Clerk of Courts.

The X on certain roads indicates discontinuance, by County Commissioners if marked with dot, or by town action if without the dot.

Roads showing on ancient maps or located by county record and which do not show on the latest maps by the Massachusetts Topographical Survey Commission are assumed to have been abandoned without official discontinuance and are indicated by oblique lines across the location.

Many records of relocations of County Roads make no mention of discontinuance of any part of the former location; the effort of such relocations and neglect to discontinue can only be determined by study of the records.

Discontinuances occasioned by minor relocations and recorded therewith are not always show on the map but can be found and identified by there serial numbers and cross references.

Along the several County Roads are numbers which correspond with the serial number given to each record noted in the index; hence, having noted a certain number besides a road turn to the same number in the index of a town or city in which said road is located and there find the date, Book and Page of the record of the layout and also cross references showing other records, if any, applying to the said road ; or, having the record of a certain road note its serial number in the index; the same number on the map shows the location of the road.

Some serial numbers are omitted on the map (to save confusion) but the cross references in the index will indicate the application of any record to its proper general location.

In the cities of Chicopee, Holyoke, Springfield and Westfield and some towns some of the newer streets, not County Roads, are omitted to increase the legibility of the map and for these cities and towns, preceding the regular index, is a list of streets, with their serial numbers, which are County Roads. This applies particularly to the thickly built portions by may not apply to all the streets as some are unnamed.

The index with its serial numbers is divided into towns; hence a road whose location extends into two or more towns may have different numbers in each town.

Hampden County, formerly a part of Hampshire County, was incorporated in 1812; records prior to that date are to be found in Northampton but have been copied and filed with the Hampden County Clerk of Courts. For these early records the index shows the location of both the original and the copy.

Many town lines have been changed and new town set off from older ones. (See brief headings on each town divisions of index) In the OLD index the items are listed only in the town in which the road, at the date of its location, was laid but in this new index they appear in the towns where they now exist. In many instances roads once located, and indexed, in a certain town are not now located in that town; in such cases the items appear in the new index "Not in -----".

Certain abbreviations appear in the index as follows:-

Public Notes

The purpose of this Index and the accompanying map is (1) to enable one to determine, almost at a glance, whether or not any certain road is a County Road and (2) to locate the Book and Page of the record or records applicable thereto.

County roads are those located and defined by the Board of County Commissioners or by order of Court prior to the establishment of that Board.

The dot within the lines of a highway is characteristic of a County Road, and only roads so marked are County Roads except State Highways which are all or nearly all laid on former County Road locations or on locations made therefore by the Board of County Commissioners and recorded with the Clerk of Courts.

The X on certain roads indicates discontinuance, by County Commissioners if marked with dot, or by town action if without the dot.

Roads showing on ancient maps or located by county record and which do not show on the latest maps by the Massachusetts Topographical Survey Commission are assumed to have been abandoned without official discontinuance and are indicated by oblique lines across the location.

Many records of relocations of County Roads make no mention of discontinuance of any part of the former location; the effort of such relocations and neglect to discontinue can only be determined by study of the records.

Discontinuances occasioned by minor relocations and recorded therewith are not always show on the map but can be found and identified by there serial numbers and cross references.

Along the several County Roads are numbers which correspond with the serial number given to each record noted in the index; hence, having noted a certain number besides a road turn to the same number in the index of a town or city in which said road is located and there find the date, Book and Page of the record of the layout and also cross references showing other records, if any, applying to the said road ; or, having the record of a certain road note its serial number in the index; the same number on the map shows the location of the road.

Some serial numbers are omitted on the map (to save confusion) but the cross references in the index will indicate the application of any record to its proper general location.

In the cities of Chicopee, Holyoke, Springfield and Westfield and some towns some of the newer streets, not County Roads, are omitted to increase the legibility of the map and for these cities and towns, preceding the regular index, is a list of streets, with their serial numbers, which are County Roads. This applies particularly to the thickly built portions by may not apply to all the streets as some are unnamed.

The index with its serial numbers is divided into towns; hence a road whose location extends into two or more towns may have different numbers in each town.

Internal Notes

Hampden County, formerly a part of Hampshire County, was incorporated in 1812; records prior to that date are to be found in Northampton but have been copied and filed with the Hampden County Clerk of Courts. For these early records the index shows the location of both the original and the copy.

Many town lines have been changed and new town set off from older ones. (See brief headings on each town divisions of index) In the OLD index the items are listed only in the town in which the road, at the date of its location, was laid but in this new index they appear in the towns where they now exist. In many instances roads once located, and indexed, in a certain town are not now located in that town; in such cases the items appear in the new index "Not in -----".
